General information

Used, Speaked, and written by Gordon people. It has a Croatian alphabets form and its traditional script. The traditional script is written from up to down just like traditional Mongolian script. In this language, there's no irregular verb conjugation, no plural form for nouns, and no article/gender for nouns. All the verbs in indicative form end with -are or -ere, and all adjectives end with -o. Most adverbs end with -alo. This is an easy language.

Nouns

There's no gender for nouns, but there're nouns that can be classified by their endings.

-a: people, country, name of a group of things

-n: language, place

nouns never end with "o" and "-re".

in the nouns about people, there must be an "e" when the noun shows the "male", and "a"when it shows the "female", example: aunt: anta uncle: enta

Verbs

all verbs end with either "-are" or "-ere". The verb conjugations are always based on person and then tenses. But always, we don't need to use tenses but only person. When you want to tell what you did, you can just add the time "yesterday" or other words. When you want to tell what you will do, you can just add "wil" in front of the verb .

There're 2 types of VC.

End with -are example verb: sare (to be)

("-" means to take away and "+" means to add)

Pronounce	How to-	example
I	-re +m	sam
you (sin.)	-re +š	saš
he	-re +n	san
she	-re +s	sas

it	-re	+je	saje
we	-re	+mo	samo
you (plu.)	-are	+iš	siš
they	-re	+j	saj

End with -ere example verb: vedere (to see)

Pronounce	How to-		example
I	-ere	+im	vedim
you (sin.)	-re	+š	vedeš
he	-re	+n	veden
she	-re	+s	vedes
it	-re	+je	vedeje
we	-re	+mo	vedemo
you (plu.)	-re	+ješ	vedeješ
they	-re	+j	vedej

If you want to add tenses in it, add

past tense: +đo

future tense: +kha

after the verbs that had conjugated in person-way.
